The International Climbing and Mountaineering Federation (UIAA) was founded in 1932 and has a global presence on six continents representing 90 member associations and federations in 67 countries.

The UIAA promotes the growth and protection of mountaineering and climbing worldwide by:

- preserving their spirit and traditions
- advancing safe and ethical mountain practices
- promoting responsible access, culture and environmental protection.

All UIAA Skills courses include an online graduation course.

This enables us to provide you with course handouts and handbooks, and also to include some information to supplement your practical course. We appreciate that your instructor may not have the time or teaching resources available on a mountainside to cover this information adequately.

UIAA Mountain Skills

Introduction

The International Climbing and Mountaineering Federation (UIAA) was founded in 1932 and has a global presence on six continents representing 90 member associations and federations in 67 countries.

The UIAA promotes the growth and protection of mountaineering and climbing worldwide by:

- preserving their spirit and traditions
- advancing safe and ethical mountain practices
- promoting responsible access, culture and environmental protection
- supporting youth participation and the Olympic movement

The UIAA's Training Panel has delegated authority to represent all aspects of Mountain Training and to keep under review training schemes and awards of its member organisations. Within the structure of mountain training the Mountain Skills scheme has two important functions:

1. To provide the theoretical and practical knowledge in the fundamental skills of navigation and hillwalking that are required to become a self-sufficient hillwalker within the upland regions of the country where the course is delivered. The scheme is divided up into Mountain Skills 1, Mountain Skills 2 and Mountain Skills Assessment.
2. To provide an assessment of the fundamental navigation and hillwalking skills for those who wish to progress to a Mountain Leader or Tutor award, where such a scheme exists in that country. It is recommended that the member organisation should provide Mountain Skills Assessment (MSA), successful completion of which is required for registration on the Mountain Leader scheme—however direct entry is permissible if suitable arrangements are made to assess these skills within the leadership assessment.

It is recommended that Mountain Skills 1 and Mountain Skills 2 training courses are run over a minimum of four days (two days each) with at least two evening/night sessions to allow for talks and night navigation exercises. However, a longer period may be desirable and necessary depending on students' individual needs and previous experience. Each course is 20 hours long, with 18 hours contact time and 2 hours of

RETAKE QUIZ

You answered 3 out of 3 questions correctly

1. Which of the following practices represents sustainable practice to help to reduce the impact of hikers upon the landscape? ✓

- Small group sizes help the landscape to recover more quickly.
- By following the principles of "Leave No Trace" we help the landscape to remain unspoiled by our passage
- By removing litter we set a good example as stewards of the places that we love.

2. What is the difference between a local guide (or leader), a national guide (or leader) and an international guide? ✓

- Only an UIAGM (IFMGA) or UIMLA member holds a professional qualification that is internationally recognised.
- UIAA accredited qualifications can be used for voluntary or paid work subject to national law within the country of origin
- Some UIAA member organisations may choose to recognise all or part of other countries' accredited qualifications, but this is entirely at the discretion of the member organisation.
- Leaders or instructors wishing to work in another country should check with the national federation, legal system and insurance company beforehand and obtain permission in writing.
